No object in Salt Lake City excites greater interest in the minds of strangers than the "Mormon" Temple.

The East Center Tower is 210 ft. high, surmounted by a hammered copper statue 12½ ft. high, heavily gilded with pure gold leaf. This statue represents the Angel Moroni blowing a trumpet, proclaiming the restoration of the Gospel.

The inscription reads as follows:

"Holiness to the Lord! The House of the Lord, built by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Commenced April 6, 1853; completed April 6, 1893."
